Quick and graceful, the Roe Deer lives in woodland and is mostly active at dawn and dusk. They are elegant nimble creatures, and when alarmed, will flee with a bounding gait. Small and shy, Roe Deer are not as sociable as other breeds, living in small groups. As ruminant animals, they spend long periods lying down chewing the cud between feeding times.

Hamish has created Roe Buck Lying Down 2019, a bronze sculpture of a deer curled up at rest, but still alert and watchful. Hamish enjoys making a 'static' pose feel alive with tension.
